LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO SEND OBSERVERS TO HOSTILITY ZONE

Briand Urges Warring
Nations To Avoid
New Battles

GENEVA, Nov. 12.—The League of Nations will send official observers to the Nonni River bridgehead, center of Sino-Japanese hostilities in northern Manchuria, it was announced here today.

A statement from league headquarters said that Aristide Briand, president of the council, had notified both China and Japan that league representatives would be sent to the Nonni battle front as well as to Anganki, concentration point for the Chinese army of General Ma Chanshan.

In notes to Nanking and Tokyo, Briand also urged both governments to give the commanders of their opposing forces in Manchuria the "strictest orders to refrain from initiating fresh action."

Briand thanked the Chinese and Japanese governments for their replies to his telegrams of November 6, in which he asked both sides to avoid further hostilities on the Nonni River front, and then declared:

"After studying these replies carefully and the latest communication received, I feel I must again insist on an undertaking entered into by both governments to make every effort to avoid aggravation of the situation."

TOKYO, Nov. 12.—While the eighth division of the regular Japanese Army, now stationed in Aomori prefecture, prepared to leave on Saturday for Manchuria, the warship Yakumo left Japanese shores today for China under command of Captain Masahito Niimi.

While the vessel's destination was secret, it was understood it had been ordered to Tientsin, where the Japanese and other foreign concessions were endangered by Chinese rioting.

Simultaneously, the foreign office lodged a protest with the Chinese Nationalist government at Nanking against the Tientsin outbreak, claiming several Japanese lives were lost. The protest was based on the Boxer protocol of 1902.

The eighth division, consisting of 4,000 men, will reinforce the railway guards in Kwantung joining the army under the command of Major General Yoshinichi Suzuki. The war ministry maintains that despite this troop movement, Japan's military strength in Manchuria still remains 3,000 men under the limit set by international treaties.

STATE FARM BUREAU WILL INCORPORATE CONVENTION RULES

Present Officers Are Elected; Three New Directors Seated

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12.—Moving to gain more efficient operation, officers of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation prepared today to file incorporation papers for the organization after minor changes in the federation's constitution to allow the act were completed in the federation's final meeting here yesterday.

Directors of the farm body re-elected present officers.

Three new directors were placed on the board by delegates. They were Herbert Marshall of Allen County, succeeding Fred Gerdmann of Ottawa for Allen, Putnam, Van Wert and Paulding counties; C. S. Campbell of Cambridge succeeding Sam H. Bell of Zanesville for Muskingum, Perry and Morgan counties; and W. F. Kempf of Athens, succeeding Arthur Johnson of Meigs County, for Athens, Meigs, Vinton and Gallia counties.

A fourth director-at-large, Mrs. Edward Shramm, Russia Township, Lorain County, was elected as required by the new constitution and Mrs. N. L. Steva of St. Marys was returned to the same post.

A move to reduce annual dues in the federation from $10 to $5 was defeated after a heated discussion.

Apparently indicating dissatisfaction of the conduct of the Ohio State Fair, a resolution was passed by the delegates urging appointment of a committee to study the fair needs and to make recommendations as to its management. The delegates also adopted resolutions in handling road funds, expressing opposition to a tariff on oil, favoring mothers' and old age pensions and unemployment insurance. The farm body also backed an enlarged conservation policy, with stricter hunting laws.

AMERICANS IN LEAD
CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Freddie Spencer and Al Crossley, the American bike racers, sprinted out to take the lead today in the six day bicycle races at the stadium.

PRINCE AND BRIDE SPURN CAROL

Disregarding the summons of his brother King Carol, Prince Nicholas of Rumania and his beautiful commoner bride, Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj, have been staying at a villa near Bucharest since their elopement, an affair which is reported to have greatly displeased the king whose own love affairs have held the interest of the world. Above is Nicholas' wife; left below, is her husband, the prince, and right is King Carol.

Old Gypsy Law Hampers Effort To Recover Girl

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 12.—An old gypsy law, which decrees that every man must pay for his wife, came out of gypsies' past today, hampering authorities in their inquiry into charges by a Brooklyn man that his 14-year-old daughter was kidnapped and forced to marry the son of a gypsy band's queen. Accusations by Frank Ranko, the girl's father, were immediately denied by "Queen" Amelia Marks, 48, of Brooklyn, and her son, Ephraim Marks, 25, who said they "purchased" the girl for $2,500, and that a legal wedding was held near Kingston, N. Y., with the father's consent.

An intensive investigation of the various complications in the charges and counter-charges was under way today by federal officials.

In a gypsy camp near Sharonville, O., surrounded by fifteen automobiles of expensive design, deputy sheriffs found the 14-year-old bride yesterday when she was pointed out by her father who came near searching for her.

A story of being taken to a movie by the gypsy prince, who then abducted her and forced her to marry him against her wishes, was refuted in almost every detail by the gypsies, who charged that the girl's father and mother are Russian gypsies and know well the old matrimonial law of the wanderers.

Ranko, they said, "worked the same trick before," and only wants to get his daughter back so he can sell her again.

The bride, in tears as accusations were hurled against her father with increased bitterness, was ordered to a cell in the county jail to await the outcome of the inquiry.

A colorful wedding celebration, attended by gypsy dancing, was held near Kingston, N. Y., after the civil ceremony was performed by R. A. Clinton, a justice of the peace, according to George Marks, 22, a brother of the gypsy prince.

Among the guests at the wedding, according to his story, were the girl's mother and her brother.

"It is the gypsy law that a man must pay for his wife. I paid for mine and my brother paid for his. I saw him hand Ranko the $2,500," he said.

Ranko, who had no comment to

DE VALERA LEADER'S HOUSE IS RAIDED

DUBLIN, Nov. 12.—A lightning raid by detectives upon the home of Robert Briscoe, leading member of the DeValera party in the Dail Eireann, while Briscoe was engaged in a debate in the Dail, was revealed here today.

Briscoe said the officers scrutinized many documents at his house, but refused to make any statement as to their objective.

An attempt by Briscoe to raise the question of the legality of the raid in the Dail was defeated.

RETURN BLUEBEARD TO CLARKSBURG FOR ACTION ON CHARGES

May Attempt To Link
Powers With Sixth
Victim

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 12.—This town was in ferment again today.

For Harry Powers, bluebeard butcher, who had been whisked away to Moundsville three weeks ago from a threatening crowd of citizens, was back in the local jail to await his arraignment on a charge of first degree murder.

The news of his return under a heavy armed escort of state police spread like a forest fire through Clarkburg.

Shortly after daybreak, groups began assembling outside the jail. They kept looking up at the cell tower where was lodged the confessed slayer of the two women victims of his matrimonial correspondence course and three children.

The victims were Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Northboro, Mass., Mrs. Asta Elcher, of Park Ridge, Ill., and the latter's three children. Their bodies were found in a ditch beside a murder case.

Powers had built with a subterranean torture chamber near here.

As the crowd grew greater outside the jail today, extra police were thrown around the building. The doors of the entrance to the sheriff's office in the front of the jail were locked. Tear gas bombs were available for any emergency.

Sheriff W. B. Grimm was asked how Powers acted during his speeding trip from the penitentiary in Moundsville to his old cell.

"He was mighty nervous until we got him back in jail," said the sheriff. "He didn't mind how fast we were going."

For the first time, Powers was told, on his arrival here, that the grand jury had returned five indictments for five murders against him.

"I expected it," Powers said calmly.

He asked if he could see his wife and how she was feeling.

The letter-writing Romeo may be arraigned tomorrow or Saturday.

After his arraignment it was expected he would be taken back to Moundsville to await his trial.

If this is not done, International News Service learned today, his trial may be set immediately for next week.

Powers was also told today of the finding of the body of Stamatis Sfikas, Greek proprietor of a shoe-shining store, who was a close friend of the West Virginia Bluebeard.

Powers appeared considerably interested but insisted he had no idea how Sfikas could have met his death.

The Greek's body was found on a hillside near a mine. There was a bullet wound in his head and a revolver beside him.

Authorities have so far declined to return a verdict of suicide. A medical examination of two dissections in the skull is being made to determine if the Greek had been attacked.

Sfikas left the home of his sister last June 10 to mail a letter to his wife in Greece.

Ever since Sfikas was missing, authorities have suspected that he might have been the sixth victim to Powers' lust for blood.

JOHN HELD JR. WEDS BEAUTY

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—In a beauty contest, John Held Jr., painter of the thin-limbed jazz-age fappers, crowned Miss Gladys Moore belle of New Orleans.

Today she was his bride.

Held quietly slipped away to Stamford, Conn., and was married to Miss Moore there.

The Helds left on a honeymoon tour, but did not divulge their destination.

Held, a native of Salt Lake City, was divorced by his first wife, Mrs. Ada Johnson Held, last September.

Attorney General Files Anti-Trust Suit; Asks Penalties

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 12.—Eviction of fifteen giant oil corporations from Texas and payment of $17,000,000 in penalties was demanded today by James V. Allred, 31-year-old attorney general of Texas, in an anti-trust suit which charged that the defendants had obtained a monopolistic stranglehold on the nation's oil industry.

Conspiracies to violate the anti-trust laws of Texas and the United States, and unlawful combinations in restraint of free trade were charged in the state's suit, filed early today in the fifty-third district court of Travis County. District Judge Charles A. Wheeler will try the case.

Collusion between the defendants had enabled them to seize the control of retail marketing of petroleum products and thereby throttle independent retailers, declared Allred's petition.

The defendants in the case are: Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Standard Oil Co. of New York, Standard Oil Co. of California, Shell Union Oil Corporation, Humble Oil and Refining Co., The Texas Company, Gulf Refining Co., Pasco Petroleum Co., Continental Oil Co., Sinclair Refining Co., Magnolia Petroleum Co., Simms Oil Co., Shell Petroleum Corporation, Cities Service Oil Co., Quaker City Coal and Oil Co., Texas Petroleum Marketers Association, American Petroleum Institute.

The attorney general's 138 page petition bristled with denunciations of the alleged activities of major oil companies in "freezing out" independent oil operators.

INDIAN SUMMER TO CONTINUE FOR TIME

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12.—Indian summer's visit to Ohio is in little danger of being interrupted very soon by the first blustering attacks of winter, the government weather bureau indicated here today.

Reports of low temperature and wintry blasts from the West herald no particular advance of freezing temperatures for Ohio, the officials declare. At least several more days of mild temperatures are in prospect, they said.

Whatever chilly breezes enter the midwest will come out of the west or the northwest, the bureau stated, but the present high pressure area over the Rocky Mountains and the plains may have spent itself or have turned away before reaching Ohio.

Far different reports come from the far West, where freezing weather and cold have already set in. A station in Yellowstone Park in the Rocky Mountain region reported a temperature of 18 degrees today.

CREW RESCUED WHEN SHIP GOES AGROUND

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The British mine sweeper Petersfield went aground early today on Tungtung Island, near Hong Kong, and is being pounded to pieces on the rocks, according to a Hong Kong dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

The steamship Derflinger rescued the officers and crew, including Admiral Sir William Kelly.

The Petersfield was expected to be a total loss, but the British cruisers Suffolk and Cornwall were dispatched to the scene to determine if any of the vessel's equipment could be salvaged.

SEEK IDENTITY OF YOUNG WOMAN AFTER MUTILATED BODY FOUND

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill., Nov. 12.—Police and medical experts today sought the identity of a young woman, believed slain by gangsters, whose mutilated body was found buried near here in an oil cloth bag filled with quicklime.

Detectives said there was little doubt that the girl had been slain by gangsters in the Fox Lake beer territory on Chicago's outskirts.

Coroner E. H. Cook of McHenry County, after a preliminary examination of the body, said there also was a possibility of unearthing other bodies, police said.

last month, the coroner declared. The body, dug up from a shallow grave, had been dismembered with a surgical expertise which added mystery to the case, Coroner Cook said.

The girl's slayers had removed the lower jaw and upper teeth to block efforts at identification.

Sheriff's deputies and residents of Crystal Lake at dawn began digging around the grave in an effort to locate several missing portions of the body. There also was a possibility of unearthing other bodies, police said.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—The strange, hypnotic power of Francis A. Donaldson, 3rd, over the eighteen-year-old Rose E. W. Allen, Quaker City debutante, continues from the grave.

The pretty young brunette sits in the palatial suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Pearce, staring into space, impervious to the pleas of her friends that she speak words of forgiveness to her father, who moves restlessly about in a room nearby. She expresses no desire to see and talk with her brother, Edward H. B. Allen, who awaits indictment for the murder of her sister's suitor.

She is still in the grip of that fascination which her father has likened to a "supernatural power," although her Sengvald no longer lives and breathes. She moves and talks like one in a trance; her eyes, her ears, her thoughts are for Donaldson, the dynamic, full-blooded, impetuous Donaldson whom Francis Allen, Rose's father, has called his daughter's seducer.

The man who transformed the love of the wholesome, sports-loving daughter of a family whose name ranks high in Philadelphia's social roster has the power, even in death, to hold his sweetheart's loyalty in spite of predictions that Miss Allen would be reconciled with her father before another day passed, she refused to speak with him.

"Donaldson was a powerful young man. He was a dominating superhuman control over my daughter, which continued up until last Friday night, Donaldson getting more defiant in his manner toward me and displaying greater proprietorship over my daughter each day."

Those are Allen Sr.'s words, spoken bitterly. The bitterness deepens daily, as the drama unfolds, with a ghost as author and director.

Sometime today remains of Donaldson will be sent from a fashionable Chestnut Street undertaking establishment to the gray stone Donaldson home in Ardmore. There, where a modest grey crepe proclaims to the stolid, spacious homes of the neighborhood that death has touched one of Philadelphia's proudest families, the body of Donaldson will be nailed into its coffin.

There will be no funeral, and burial will be "at the discretion

SUSPECT HELD IN COLUMBUS DEATH

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12.—Arthur Rigby, an unemployed railroad worker, was held by police here today pending investigation of the death of Charles Kize, taxi driver, who was fatally hurt in an altercation over a parking space here yesterday.

Kize's death was attributed to internal injuries received when Rigby struck him about the body. He died while being taken to a hospital.

Rigby claimed self-defense in his story to police. He said that he had asked Kize to move his cab so that he might back out of a parking space. Kize refused, Rigby said, and started a fight when Rigby attempted to shove his car out of the way.

Coroner Edward E. Smith planned an autopsy today to determine the cause of the taxi driver's death.

BREAK WOMAN'S LEG
TO EFFECT ROBBERY

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 12.—Crucially almost unprecedented in recent police court history sent authorities today on a determined search for two men who last night tortured a 50-year-old rheumatic widow, breaking one of her legs to force her to surrender $200.

The woman, Mrs. Addie Porter, declared the two men gagged her and then twisted her arms and legs until she gave up $200 of the $300 she had hidden in her clothing.

One of the men, she believed, was "Mike," formerly a roomer at her house, and the other was "Buster," his companion. She said both were from Knoxville, Tenn.

MAY INSTALL EXILE MANCHURIAN RULER WITH JAPANESE AID

Camp Planned Before
Troops Withdrawn;
Taken To Mukden

PEIPING, Nov. 12.—Smuggled out of Tientsin on a Japanese warship under cover of riots staged to divert attention from his departure, Hsuan Tung, the deposed "boy emperor" of China, was being taken to Dairen today en route to Mukden to be installed as ruler of Manchuria.

The sensational revelation of a deep-laid plot to restore the Manchurian dynasty with Japanese aid was made to International News Service in reliable reports received through confidential channels from Tientsin.

All plans have been made, the report declared, to install Hsuan Tung, known during his long exile in Tientsin as Mr. Harry Pu-Yi, as Manchurian emperor before November 16, the date set by the League of Nations Council for withdrawal of Japanese troops from Manchuria.

All details of the plot were left to Major Doihara, Japanese army officer stationed in Tientsin, the reports said. The week-end rioting near the Japanese concession in that city, which resulted in numerous casualties and caused the calling out of American and other foreign troops, was believed at least partially a smoke-screen to divert attention of Chinese authorities from the plot.

With Hsuan Tung, the reports declared, went members of his entourage who had been living with him in the Japanese concession since the old Manchurian dynasty was overthrown in 1912.

His father, Prince Chun, who was reigning as Prince Regent during his sons minority at the time the dynasty fell—maybe among those aboard the warship, the reports declared. It was learned he left his hotel in the British concession and moved into the Japanese concession at the insistence of Japanese authorities just before the rioting occurred.

In an interview tonight, Princess Pu-Chieh, sister-in-law of the boy emperor, told International News Service she had not the slightest doubt that Hsuan Tung had been "spirited away" by the Japanese. She expressed the belief that the bomb sent to Hsuan Tung's home concealed in a basket of fruit just prior to the rioting represented part of the Japanese plot, indicating violence would be resorted to if he failed to fall in with the Japanese plans.

Seven persons from their beds, an explosion, believed caused by a bomb, today wrecked the homes of Frank Gerak, nephew of Police Chief George J. Matowitz.

Launching an immediate investigation, detectives indicated a belief that the relationship of the house owner to the police chief may have been the motive for the dynamite attack.

No one was injured by the blast, although Mr. and Mrs. Gerak, their three daughters, and Mrs. Gerak's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palacke, were thrown to the floor from their beds by the explosion.

Two men who had driven up to the house in a small coupe, left hurriedly a few seconds before the blast occurred, rocking the neighborhood, police were informed by a resident across the street from the Gerak home. Pieces of fuse were found near the front porch of the damaged residence.

WOULD SEE WHAT'S ON "OTHER SIDE"

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Della Christie, former prohibition informer, was seeing "what's on the other side" today.

Committing suicide by firing a bullet into her body on her wedding anniversary, Mrs. Christie left a note which read:

"I've lived in the past, present and future; Now I want to see what's on the other side." The note caustically added: "let Uncle Sam bury me. He's not on the level either."

Alex Christie, the woman's husband, is serving a term in federal prison at Atlanta for liquor law violations, it was said.

LEONID SHOWER OF METEORS TO APPEAR

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 12.—One of the most spectacular of heavenly displays—the Leonid shower of meteors—is due to appear about November 15, Dr. Everett F. Yowell, director of the University of Cincinnati observatory, said today.

The shower, according to Dr. Yowell is seen at intervals of about thirty-three years, but the exact time of its arrival cannot be prophesied.

READ THIS FIRST:

Lois Corbin, a pretty working girl falls in love with Bruce Durand, the nephew of Charles Durand, one of Chicago's wealthiest men. Ashamed to have Bruce know where she lives, Lois leaves her family and goes to share an apartment with Margaret and Arlene, two of her girl friends. Arlene falls in love with Bruce herself, and sets about to get him. She tells him that Lois has gone out with another man one night when Bruce calls for her, when in reality she has gone to a movie because Arlene has told her that Bruce could not come down that night. Bruce is driven by jealousy to fall deliberately into the trap Arlene has set for him. Lois sends her engagement ring back to him and moves into a little room down on Rush street so that she will not have to live with Arlene. Lois gets unbearably lonely some there, and finally swallows her pride and goes back to her home. Her mother is elated because she has come back to live with them, and even Lois is glad to be there once more. She realizes that this is her place, after all. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Durand have heard that their nephew has announced his intention to marry a girl who is not in the social register, and Mrs. Durand insists that they return at once to America and settle Bruce so that he will not do anything foolish. Bruce is sorry that he has made a second date with Arlene, because he can't think about anyone else except Lois. However, he goes for her, and on the way to the club they pass his home. Arlene insists on going inside, and Bruce decides that this is as good as any other way that he knows of to kill time.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 28

THE DURAND home was an Evanston landmark. It had been built by an expensive New York architect, who had a flair for turrets and gargoyles. Thus the outside was much more pretentious than the inside. Arlene had a feeling of immense luxury as she walked up the big stone steps and stood there on the porch while Bruce inserted the key into the lock and opened the door.

Arlene never had been in such a beautiful home before in her life. In fact, she had thought that the movies must overdo things just a little. People couldn't possibly have enough money to buy the costly furniture that the movies would have you believe they did. But here was evidence that the movies had told the truth.

Mrs. Durand had furnished the house in perfect taste with the help of an interior decorator. Arlene wandered about silently almost in awe of the beautiful surroundings in which Bruce Durand actually lived. This was what she desired most of home. She would have liked to see the Durand's. His uncle would leave all this to him, she knew. Wouldn't everybody in Monmouth simply faint if she married into a family like this? She would like to see old Mrs. Wood (who had made so many statements about her coming to no good end) when she walked into a family such as this.

She went over to Bruce and took his hand.

"This is beautiful," she ejaculated. "I envy anybody who can live in a nice place like this. How does it seem?"

It was the wrong thing to say, but Arlene did not know that.

"It seems like any other house, I suppose," Bruce responded. "It's my home, the only home I've ever known. I wonder vaguely what Arlene's home was like. Queer, never had thought much about what Lois' home was like. He took it for granted that she had a decent family, for Lois, herself was such a nice girl."

"Let's stay a while," Arlene suggested. She walked over to the immense green velvet davenport and sat down in its soft pillows.

Bruce turned on the radio and the strains of lively dance music floated out into the air. It was like heaven, Arlene told herself, settled there on the davenport listening. Now if Bruce would only come over there and sit down beside her, show some little sign of interest.

He continued pacing up and down the room, lighting one cigarette after another, puffing on one awhile, throwing it away then lighting another one. Arlene didn't see why he had to be so upset. There wasn't anything to worry about.

"What's the matter, Bruce?" she asked him somewhat irritably.

Bruce shook his head. "Nothing. Nothing at all."

"Come over here and sit down beside me," she commanded.

Bruce obeyed. She put her arm around him. "Put your head over here," she suggested, placing a pillow up close to her own head. Bruce did it because it didn't seem to matter. He wasn't thinking about her, however. His mind was constantly on Lois, wondering what she was doing. If he could find that fellow Mack, maybe he could assert himself, tell him to stay away from Lois, that she was his girl. But she wasn't. She had sent his ring back, hadn't she? Well, then, stop thinking about it. That was easy to say, too. Easier said than it was done.

"What are you thinking about, Bruce?" Arlene had a way of saying things exactly at the wrong time as far as Bruce was concerned. For the moment he felt like telling her the truth, that he realized that it wouldn't be a complimentary thing to say. Besides, she had given him her time for the evening. He ought to try to entertain her a little better than he was doing.

So he said, "You."

Arlene beamed. She moved over a little closer to him and let her hand fall into his lap as carelessly as possible. "I've been thinking about you more than just right now," she cooed.

Bruce wasn't interested. In fact he regretted that he had started anything that could be interpreted as being sentimental. When a fellow was in love with another girl it was difficult to find anything interesting to talk about with anyone else, Bruce decided.

"Want to dance?" he asked her. Anything to get away from this idea that he had so foolishly put into her head! She didn't want to dance, she told him. She was comfortable just sitting there near him, talking to him. Besides, she didn't want to tire herself out before they went to the club. So they sat on without saying anything of much importance. She made an occasional remark concerning the music. Then she would hum a snatch in tune with the orchestra. She wasn't finding it as easy to win Bruce over as she had thought it would be.

Nevertheless, she wasn't giving up. Not Arlene! This was the first time that she had ever had an opportunity to even meet a wealthy man and she wasn't going to let a little thing like Lois Corbin break up any plans for her! She would just give him time. He'd forget about Lois.

"Perhaps we'd better be getting on," Bruce suggested, "if we're going to dance much. They don't play very late at the club, you know."

Arlene wanted to go to the club. She wanted to walk in there with Bruce Durand and meet his kind of people. At the same time she believed that she was giving up a big chance not staying here with him. She would have more opportunity to impress herself upon him here alone than she would have at the country club. Better do as he wanted to for a while longer, though. It didn't pay to be too demanding with men. Especially one of Bruce Durand's type.

"Yes," she agreed, "I think we had better get on." She liked that expression. She had never heard it used before. She mustn't forget it. It would be a good one to use when she went out with some of her other friends. She supposed it was an aristocratic expression, used by members of the social set in which she knew Bruce moved.

Bruce walked over and turned off the radio. Then he picked up Arlene's coat and held it up for her. Arlene moved across the room like a lazy cat. She was conscious of the fact that each time she stepped her long, clinging gown showed her figure off to its best advantage. She slipped her arms into her coat sleeves and then turned quickly to Bruce so that her face came close to his, so close that she could not resist kissing him warmly.

"Didn't you like it?" Arlene said before he had a chance to recover. "Yes, yes, sure I did," Bruce stammered. He wondered whether he were blushing. He felt as if he were. He hoped not. It wasn't because no girl ever kissed him before. It was because—well—the girl had caught him unawares. He had not felt any inclination to kiss her.

"Well, show me that you did, then," Arlene held her lips up to him. There wasn't much else he could have done. One couldn't very well refuse a girl when she asked you to kiss her, or the equivalent (TO BE CONTINUED)

CLEVELAND MILK SHED CHANGES WITH HUMAN AND COW POPULATION

The twelve counties constituting what is known as The Western Reserve—Ashtabula, Cuyahoga, Erie, Geauga, Huron, Lake, Lorain, Mahoning, Medina, Portage, Summit, and Trumbull—once produced enough milk to take care of the requirements of both Cleveland and Pittsburgh, but now are not producing quite enough milk to take care of the actual fresh milk requirements of their urban population. Studies made by C. G. McBride of the Department of Rural Economics of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, show that in 1870 there were forty dairy cows for every 100 people living in these counties and 120 cows for every 100 people in towns of 2500 and over. In fifty years, from 1870 to 1920, there was a steady gain of population over number of dairy cows until in 1920 the ratio was nine cows per 100 of total population and eleven cows per 100 of urban population.

The decade, 1920 to 1930, more than kept pace with this rate of change. The 1930 census figures on dairy cattle reveal the present ratio to be five cows for each 100 people of total population and six cows per 100 people living in cities of over 2500. Six cows will not, on the average, give enough milk to meet the year-round requirement of 100 milk consumers.

This change of ratios accounts for the rapid expansion in the past ten years of the Cleveland milk shed. There is evidence that under the recent increase in production this expansion has moved at a too rapid rate.

A spike-driving celebration, on Nov. 10, at Bieber, Cal., marks the completion of the first construction of a new railroad line in years. The spike will be driven at the point of the linking of 200 miles of new road, between Klamath Falls, Ore., present southern terminus of the Great Northern, and Keddie, Cal., on the main line of the Western Pacific. The new road provides a new through route from the north Pacific coast to San Francisco, as well as the east. The Great Northern is the railroad founded by James J. Hill, "Empire Builder of the West," who drove a golden spike 20 years ago, at Bend, Ore., marking the first step in his plan to extend the Great Northern from the Columbia river to California. Prominent participants in the ceremony will be Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern, and Arthur Curtiss James, largest stockholder in both great systems, who will drive the golden spike. The road likewise opens a new region.

ARRESTS FEATURE TOWN CELEBRATION

The village hoosegow at Jamestown for a time held a number of occupants who over-celebrated the occasion when the town held a community Armistice Day celebration Wednesday night.

Only two persons, however, were ultimately arraigned before Mayor W. E. Reid on drunkenness charges. Grover Tidd drew a fine of $5 and costs, Arthur Mayo, colored, who allegedly broke a few whiskey bottles against a brick wall to destroy the evidence, was given the option of paying a fine of $50 and costs and serving a ninety-day jail sentence or leaving Jamestown. He chose the latter alternative. Another colored youth, also arrested, was later released. Sheriff John Baughn and Marshal Thomas Keplar made the arrests.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

For every house is builded by some man; but he that built all things is God—Hebrews, IV, 4.

NOT FOR MANCHURIA

China has asked the League of Nations to send an international force, consisting of American, British, French and Italian troops now on Chinese soil or in Chinese waters, to police the South Manchurian Railway pending the settlement of its dispute with Japan. The thing can't be done.

American troops are in China solely for the purpose of protecting American life and property. They cannot be commandeered by the League of Nations; and if the Government in Washington were to order them to co-operate with the League in the performance of duty so remote from the protection of American life and property as policing a Japanese railway in Manchuria, we have a feeling that Congress would have something to say about it.

Great Britain, France and Italy, all members of the League of Nations, can lend their soldiers and sailors to the League if they like. The United States is under no obligation, actual or implied, to do so. As a matter of fact, it was Art. XVI of the Covenant, which provides for joint military action against violators of the Covenant, that did as much as anything else to keep the United States out of the League.

The failure of the League to live up to its promises is naturally disappointing to China; but that is no reason for expecting that the United States will support both the League and China with American troops in a controversy in which American interests are not immediate. China's request forcefully illustrates the folly of two things: Counting on armed support from an organization that has no army and looking to others to do your fighting for you. American pacifists and little army and navy people should take note.

NORRIS MAY BOLT?

Senator George W. Norris, who wears the Republican label, says that he may bolt the Republican ticket in 1932 as he did in 1928. The damage Mr. Norris did to Mr. Hoover's candidacy three years ago was by no means fatal, as events proved. The probability that his bolting the Republican ticket next year would have any more decisive effect on the party's chances at the polls in a National election is not very great.

The gentleman from Nebraska seems to have one profound grievance against things political as they are: That "under our system, a man like me is prohibited from being elected President of the United States just as much as though he had been born in Canada or some other European nation." The prohibition appears to exist; but it is self-imposed and not a result of the American party system. Abraham Lincoln was elected President in 1860 by a party that was born only six years before. If Senator Norris could deliver the goods he could create his own party and ride down Pennsylvania Ave. over the dead bodies of both of the historic parties.

Senator Norris makes the mistake of thinking that the radical ideas that have given him a following in Nebraska are acceptable to a majority of the American people; that the country is crying out for a Moses to lead it into the promised land of state socialism. That is one thing that keeps him out of the Presidency. Another thing is that the electorate generally is suspicious of a man who uses a party's machinery to get into office and then turns around and tries to smash that machinery and the party, whose colors he flies, with it. The "system" has nothing to do with it. Any system can be beaten by a big enough man.

The capital city of Persia has an eighteen-year-old lad who is nearly 12 feet tall (according to report). When he grows up he can witness an American Legion parade without having to buy a grandstand ticket and take in the ball games without stooping to a knot-hole.

Soldiers do not make war. They fight it. The politicians do not fight war. They make it. The pacifists are barking up the wrong tree when they demand uniforms as a menace to peace.

Even the Navy League will scarcely care to contend that a decrease in the number of rear admirals would do harm.

Now they are inventing a cat that will go sidewise. How are you going to dodge a thing like that?

Americans will find it easier to understand Japan's conversations with China if they remember Yip.

Other Editorial Thoughts

REALIZATION OF A READJUSTMENT

There is a new way of looking at the tangle of fact and feeling that predominates the present situation. It may be called the realization of readjustment. People affected by adversity are beginning to realize that their temporary hardship probably is not an unmitigated evil—that the general readjustment, of which it sometimes is the cause and sometimes the result, will be a better foundation for coming good times than the foundation that existed during the late era of prosperity. It's nothing more than good philosophy of the expression, "It's here, so make the best of it."

Adversity is the mother of thought, just as necessity is the mother of invention. People have been drawn close to the unalterable facts of economics during the last year. They have had the time and the incentive to think clearly about matters that they saw, previously, through a deceiving haze of illusions. By 1940 they will look back on the present period of deflation as the first time the air was cleared since the war clouds befuddled the world in 1914. The supposition is strengthened by the fact that price levels now are back to the levels of the pre-war period.

There was extreme hesitancy in facing the facts following the stock market crash of 1929—hesitancy born of ignorance. Politicians damaged confidence in their judgment for years to come by predictions that "corners would be turned" in so many weeks or so many months. They were obliged, as the nominal leaders of the public thought, to say something at the time; the fact that they erred and subsequently were made to look foolish is less an indictment of their intentions than of their farsightedness. There has been, significantly, no unreasonably optimistic statement from an important politician for a year. The United States has gone to the other extreme. It is unreasonably pessimistic.

The pendulum of popular thought never hangs inertly perpendicular. It is forever moving; at present it is on the return swing, from foolish despair back towards common sense. People are thinking straight, facing facts and shunning fancies. In this they are aided, strangely enough, by the demagoguery of crooked thinkers, whose half-baked nostrums are today being recognized as the worse than worthless things they are. — Marion Star.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—All fete days in New York—Hallowe'en, Thanksgiving, the Fourth of July, and Election Day—have a "run." Which is to say, they are each celebrated for days afterwards. There is a grotesque stuffed dummy strung on a wire over the middle of East Forty-fifth street which may have been put there in honor of Hallowe'en Election day or in anticipation of Thanksgiving. It's hard to tell.

Bonfires, always a favorite with the younger patriots, are still giving firemen trouble in the tenement neighborhoods. These, I gather, are in honor of the recent election. Last night one of the cross-town streets of the old Hell's Kitchen district witnessed a succession of huge packing-box conflagrations which were doused by impatient firemen who simply turned on their hoses with a sigh, knowing well that harsh words would gain nothing.

As soon as the blazing pile had been drenched to smoking embers, the urchins and gamins of the neighborhood would set about the construction of another heap further down the street, or in the next block. It is amazing how many varieties of kindling and even oak logs can be found in mid-Manhattan when bonfires are being built.

Last night there was a minor commotion in an Eleventh avenue undertaking establishment over the disappearance of a handsome beechwood casket. Later, a block away, a large bonfire flared dangerously to a large, applauding gallery.

"What're you celebrating?" this reporter inquired of a youngster in a roll-neck sweater.

"Al Smit," he flung back.

"Humph!" a young lady with sailed blonde curls interjected. "Al Smit ain't runnin' until 1932."

"All right. He won in 1932, then."

IN HONOR OF EVERYBODY

The Central Park gate naming committee, if there is such a body, probably passed a motion of rejoicing that there were 17 gates to be named. A recent circuit of the park suggests that the namers had some difficulty thinking up enough classes of people to name gates after.

There is a scholars' gate, a merchants' gate, a farmers' and warriers' gate—and down the line gates named in honor of artists, All-Saints, boys, children, miners, engineers, woodmen, girls, pioneers and strangers.

There is no racketeers' gate, however.

SUN-SPOTS AND THE AURORA

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

When pronounced sun-spot activity occurs near the sun's central meridian, we may look for a display of aurora following it. In the sun's atmosphere there is an abundance of free electrons (negative particles of electricity). These electrons develop a strong outflow from the sun whenever there is a marked solar disturbance. Vigorous sun-spot activity provides such an occasion. The electrons from a sun-spot come streaming forth as a beam or pencil of radiation. Russell tells us these magnetic storms with aurora displays occur about 23 hours after the corresponding spot has passed the sun's central meridian. When these electrified corpuscles reach the earth's upper rarefied air, they impart high stimulating effect producing the aurora glow.

ANOTHER JAPANESE EARTHQUAKE

DEMOCRATS CALLED UPON NOW TO DO SOMETHING IN CONSTRUCTIVE WAY

WASHINGTON.—The late elections settled one thing.

There no longer is any question that the Democrats will go after the speakership of the house of representatives and undertake the job of reorganizing the house in other respects—that is to say, putting Democrats at the head of all the committees and substituting Democrats for Republicans in all such positions as the clerk's, the sergeant-at-arms' and so forth.

Unless deaths in their ranks upset this program, by giving a temporary majority to the G. O. P. contingent December 7, when Congress is due to convene, all indications are that it will go through like chain lightning.

While the question of the two parties' respective line-ups on opening day was still teetering, dependent on results in the recent elections, there were Democrats who favored leaving the machinery of management in the Republicans' hands.

At that stage in the situation there was something at least worth discussion in the view they took.

The G. O. P. then had a paper majority of a vote or two.

It was not a genuine majority for, among the members who were elected as Republicans, some 20 or 30 refused to acknowledge regular Republican leadership. The Democrats were reasonably certain all along that they could win enough of these insouciant votes to their side to effect a Democratic organization, if they would make the right sort of promises.

But they did not like to make the promises.

Since then, however, the Democrats have gained a little strength; the Republicans have lost a little—the result of belated elections to fill vacancies created by deaths among previously-elected members.

Three such elections are yet to be held.

One of these is in the First district of New Hampshire, but it will not be held until after the speaker's fight is over. The Fifth district of New Jersey will vote early enough to send its representative to Washington in time for the contest; that selection, therefore, is a factor. The third is in San Antonio, Tex., where a special election is expected to be held to fill the seat of Harry Wurzbach, only G. O. P. congressman from his state, who has just died. The Democrats, moreover, whether they like it or not, will be forced to adopt a vigorous, constructive policy—not merely balk at any suggestions the administration or the G. O. P. generally may put forward.

It will be of the highest importance to them to DO SOMETHING legislatively.

They may not be able to get it through the senate, of which neither party will be able to consider itself in control, and if they do get it through the senate, it may be vetoed.

Nevertheless, they must establish a good record—and be able to say, if it goes by the board, that it was not their fault.

A really vital Democratic consideration is this:

There are several significant hints in the atmosphere that times are beginning to pick up. If they pick up appreciably before the next election, 1932's Democratic political prospects may not be so bright as Democratic leaders have been anticipating.

It will be most essential for them to convince the voters that whatever improvement may be scored was due to their efforts in the house of representatives—that they literally forced better times upon the administration. Otherwise, if there is an improvement, the administration will get the credit for it; probably it will get it anyway, but it certainly will if the Jeffersonians shrink responsibility.

Conversely, if the improvement fails to materialize, their complaints will fall flat unless they can show that at least they tried to accomplish something.

MENU HINT

Baked Ham Scalloped Potatoes

Stuffed Ham and Pineapple Salad

Buttered Turnips

Rice Pudding Tea Milk

This is an oven menu, that is, it may all be cooked in the oven. The turnips may be brought to a boil on top of the stove then put into the oven to cook, the butter and seasonings added 10 minutes before serving.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Ham and Pineapple Salad

Twelve slices canned pineapple, four package dates (12), twelve nut meats, salad dressing, one-half cream cheese, two tablespoons cream lettuce. Stuff pineapple with cheese which has been rubbed to a paste with the cream. Press a nutmeat into center of each date. Arrange two slices of pineapple on a bed of lettuce so that the edges overlap. Place a stuffed date in the center of each slice. Top with salad dressing. Six servings.

Suggestions

Important Trifles

A census of more than 200 home economics experts reveals the fact that over 90 per cent are in favor of recipes in the amounts to serve six. Less than 10 per cent favored amounts to serve four or less.

A recipe for serving six may usually be divided in half to make just enough for two or three. If the recipe calls for one egg, one may use, in most cases (except for cakes), either the yolk or the white, when dividing.

Antiseptic Properties of Soap Bar

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

Does a bar of soap transmit germs? This question has been reopened by the researches of Dr. W. R. Redden. We recorded in this column a few weeks ago the researches which indicated that soap had distinct antiseptic powers—that in fact it was better than most antiseptics. Incidentally in connection with this our attention was called by certain manufacturers of iodine to the fact that soap does not kill two of the most dangerous germs—tetanus, or lockjaw, and the streptococcus, and that iodine does. We are glad to note this fair addition to those remarks.

Since soap itself is antiseptic in qualities, the old idea that a bar of soap can transmit disease needs some revision.

Dr. Redden's report in part follows:

1. In the first place, the commercially-made cake of soap is free of bacteria. The manufacturing process of soap kills all bacteria that might be found in the fats used. This manufacture consists of rendering the fat, boiling the soap mixture for hours, adding large amounts of alkali, and causing chemical changes to take place among the ingredients. Any one of these processes would kill any known micro-organism. Laboratory experiments have repeatedly demonstrated that soap, as it reaches the consumer, is sterile except as the surface may have become contaminated by handling.

2. Bacterial examinations were made of 20 new cakes of soap, and no bacteria were found on any of them. Examination of 75 used cakes of soap obtained from as many sources, including hotels, machine shops, railroad stations, a sewage disposal plant, various kitchen, two abattoirs, and a number of specimens from a public bath, failed to show, on culture, a single living organism.

Another experiment was made as follows: A cake of soap was put in a sterile dish and inoculated with living germs from fresh cultures and incubated. Twelve of the most virulent varieties of germs were used. The germs were all dead in less than half an hour except in three instances.

These experiments were not done for any soap company, but were made in connection with an extensive study of sterilization for operations in places other than hospitals.

In using a cake of soap there are four main points through which pathogenic bacteria might invade the body and produce disease; namely:

1. Eyes.
2. Nose.
3. Mouth.
4. Broken skin—that is, through wounds, for most pathogenic organisms do not penetrate the unbroken skin.

Obviously, then, soap does not infect the eyes, nose or mouth, except under unusual circumstances. The soap, or rather does not get into these cavities. So far as the last factor is concerned, if there is no cut or break in the skin, even infected soap would not get into it. But, as a matter of fact, soap has such antiseptic powers that it will help to heal a broken skin.

Hubby's Good Provider

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Virginia Lee: What would you do if you had a husband that you knew was corresponding with another woman, but it was still good to you and the children?"

"He provides well and never gives us a cross word; takes us places and all that, but I know he is corresponding. He doesn't receive any mail at this address but gets it elsewhere."

"Our home was almost wrecked once, but I never ceased loving him, and have always been good to him; always have his meals ready, the house in trim and his clothes clean and pressed."

"I worry a lot but keep it all to myself. I have three rather small girls. I am afraid this might lead to a broken home some day if I can't act."

Letters from women who fear their husbands are untrue to them but love said husbands, nevertheless, are frequently in my mail. What would you do they ask. Who knows what one would do in any case until the time comes? I would probably throw an emotional fit, and wreck my own life and my children's. That's what most women do, isn't it?

We women live too much in our emotions. It is the thing that often unfits us for taking big executive positions. We have been left at home with our feelings so long that they control us. We are learning gradually to master them and think with our minds, but it will take time.

Now, thinking with our minds, you and I, Louise what good would it do to accuse your husband of being untrue, going through with a painful scene and possibly wrecking your home. None, that I can see. You may be mistaken about the matter, you know. And if it is true that he is corresponding with another woman, you love him, you are the mother of his children, and keep a pleasant home for him, and so you have the inside track if you care to fight any outside influences.

He is fond of you and the children. He must be or he would not take such good care of you all and want to be with you.

It is humiliating to know that you don't fill your husband's heart entirely, if that is true, but you won't gain a larger place by quarreling with him. You will only succeed in making yourself and the children miserable.

Why not try to have faith that your husband is true, that you and the children are first with him, and be happy and as carefree as one can be in this crazy world?

Ray: Why not take the girl friend's advice and go with others. Ray? You say other girls are wild and you are afraid of gold diggers. Tush, tush, that is foolish! All the other girls in school can't be wild. Look around you. Son, and find one who is sweet and in need of a good boy and ask her out occasionally. Nothing will wake the girl you like up so quickly as a little opposition.

E. R.: I think it would be very nice to send the girl's mother a small gift for Christmas with a note telling her how much you appreciate her kindness to you. If you think the girl might be hurt if you didn't send her one, too, send her a box of candy, or some little thing like that. But a card is enough if you are "Just friends."

Brown Eyes: My advice to you, Brown Eyes, is to forget this delinquent boy friend as much as possible and go out with other boys. It may be that he is just "sowing his wild oats," so to speak, now he has his car, and will settle down after awhile. In any event, if you try to have a good time without him, no harm will be done and you will feel better and show him that you, too, can be independent.

Woman Has Cold Feet

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: I suppose I ought to consult a physician about this, but I can't afford to just at present. And so I'm hoping that you'll be able to assist me. As soon as the weather becomes cooler, I begin to suffer with cold feet. My little toes just simply freeze when there's the least drop in temperature. And this condition is most annoying. Is there anything that can be done at home to remedy cold feet?"

Mrs. B. D.

Cold feet usually indicate nothing but poor circulation. General circulation improvement must be sought, if the condition is to be remedied. Cold showers are effective for this purpose. Cold water douches after a warm foot bath, followed by a brisk rub will help to stir up the circulation in the feet. Also, take deep-breathing exercises when you rise in the morning, and get plenty of exercise and fresh air each day, in order to normalize the circulation throughout your entire body. And be sure to wear roomy shoes, so the circulation of the blood in your feet will be in no way restricted.

"Dear Miss Glad: The water in this town is just about as hard as a Shyluck's heart. And as a result, my nightly baths seem to do my skin more harm than good. I've heard that borax is a water softener, and was wondering if it would be wise for me to add a bit of it to my bath water each night. I shall be grateful for your opinion in this matter. And by the way, I think that reducing course outlined in your booklet on 'The New Figure' is simply the nuts! I not only lost my 23 excess pounds through it, but also found that the diet helped to end in clearing my skin. All my thanks to you. Grateful Gert."

It is indeed true that borax softens hard water. But this substance is an alkali, and abstracts oil from the skin. A bit of borax added to the bath water occasionally would not materially harm the skin. But

"Dear Miss Glad: I'd like to begin using that sulphur and vaseline mixture that you advocate for eradicating dandruff. I do not, however, know just how to use it, and would be greatly pleased if you would give me this information. Matilda."

Before applying the sulphur and vaseline mixture, you should brush your hair vigorously, and scrape your scalp gently with a blunt comb in order to loosen the dandruff. Then you should part your hair at intervals, and rub a quantity of the mixture into the scalp at each part. After the mixture has been applied to your entire scalp, you should massage it in with your fingertips. Allow it to remain on overnight, if possible, and shampoo your hair the following morning with a pure, bland soap.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty question by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

Eating Your Words

A Bad Taste

It's No Fun

Hastily I said something.

Without thinking, without knowing, I send a few words forth to wing their way or drop to earth.

Swiftly the Hawk of Truth, waiting in the sun, darted down upon my fluttering words and sank his talons in them and brought them back to me and dropped them at my feet. . . . all bloated, all quivering, all penitent and ashamed.

And the ruthless Hawk said to me, "Are these your words?"

"Yes," said I, and averted my eyes.

Then eat them!" screamed the Hawk of Truth, and flew swiftly away.

So I ate them.

The words you wish you hadn't spoken make a nauseating taste. They are rotten, they are tainted, filthy grubs congregate upon them. You wish they weren't yours. They form a ghastly banquet.

They are tough. You chew and chew and chew a bitter cud. There are rocks in them that break your teeth. They are bitter and they sting. And the more you eat of them the more they seem to be. They multiply as you devour them.

Very soon you've had enough. They are dry, and you choke on them. You look around for a drink of cool water to wash them down.

No water anywhere. You eat in

GADETS BOAST GOOD RECORD THIS YEAR; CENTRAL REVAMPED

Fifth Night Game Is Records Given
Offered Fans;

By PHIL FRAM

Xenia Central's football eleven, loser of its last five games, has a date with the O. S. and S. O. Home gridders at Cox Field Friday night at 8 o'clock.

This will be the fifth night contest for the Buccaneers this fall and the first for the cadets, to whom the thing will be more or less a novelty. The Home grid squad was permitted to hold a practice session at the field Tuesday night to get somewhat accustomed to playing under the floodlights.

Fear of over-confidence on the part of Xenia footballers is the least of Coach "Pinky" Wilson's worries this week because the Bucs have not been doing anything in particular for the last five weeks that would warrant such a feeling.

There is, of course, the past gridiron record between the two local schools, showing a Home eleven has never beaten nor even scored upon a Central High team, but it will take more than past performances of former Buccaneer teams to enable this year's Xenia football model to preserve precedent.

"Pinky" has been letting his squad take things rather easy this week, guarding against injuries and such in practice. He has dropped a gentle hint that Xenia's lineup for the Home game will undergo a revamping process, working on the theory that variety in team personnel is the spice of a coach's life or some such line of reasoning.

The domestic football clash Friday night will have local officials, including Paul Turnbull as referee, Ed Jacobs as umpire and Paul Fuller as headlinesman.

There is no way of arriving at a comparison of the relative ability of the two teams, even through the respective season's records of each. The cadets have won four and lost two while the Bucs have won one game, tied a game and lost five. Here are the grid records of both teams to date:

of the family." The broad-shouldered figure that crumpled at the blast of Eddie Allen's shotgun on Monday night will be laid away, in all probability, without being viewed by Miss Allen.

The girl does not yet know that her father sacrificed her reputation in an attempt to save his son from the electric chair. Allen's decision to reveal the motive for the crime, a motive only partially hidden beneath young Eddie's avowal that he had no personal grudge against the man he killed, was not announced to Rose.

Up until today only vague rumors of Donaldson's having wronged his sister's sister traveled from close cropped lawn to close cropped lawn. Allen allowed young Donaldson to call on his daughter after the seduction took place, he said, in order to allay scandal and to conceal all knowledge of "our sorrow" except within the family. Philadelphia society, a stream of life that runs beyond the sight of men and women in the streets, is amazed by the revelations the Allen case has brought out. The Allen family, now stripped of financial power, according to Allen's own declaration, is a well known one in this city of well known families. There even is a street named for an earlier Allen. The traditional homestead at Haverford, abandoned last year, was once a showplace of the community.

National Corn - Husking Contest To Be Broadcast

By MILDRED MASON
PROCEEDINGS of the national corn-husking contest will be broadcast direct from the field over an NBC network Friday. The "ear by ear" account will be a special feature of the National Farm and Home Hour heard through WLW, Cincinnati, at 1 p. m.

Charley Stookey, who has seen many shucking contests, will describe the huskers' progress. He will be equipped with a portable transmitter enabling the broadcast to be given from within a few feet of the huskers as they drum on the bangboards with a steady stream of Iowa corn. Music will be played by the Coe College band which will play the "Iowa Corn Song" special for President Hoover.

Oscar Shaw on Air.

Oscar Shaw, musical comedy star, will be guest artist on the Nestle's program Friday at 7 p. m. over an NBC network through WCKY, Covington. Shaw will sing "Do Do Do", "Thank Your Father" and "Even As You and I".

Feature Band Music.

A half hour of stirring martial music will be provided radio fans Friday evening at 9 o'clock when Elliott Brock and his military band again take to the air over WLW, in a program of popular march selections. Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" and other popular band numbers will be included in this concert under the baton of one of radio's most popular band leaders.

Screen Star Broadcasts.

Irene Rich, screen star, Yvette Ruge and Lee Morse will be guest artists on the RKO Theater of the Air program Friday at 10:30 p. m. over an NBC network. Milton Schwarzwald's Orchestra will furnish musical numbers. The program will be heard through WSAI, Cincinnati.

Radio Star Is Blind.

"Jimmie" Bullock, 22-year-old star of the WLW broadcasting studios and a member of the harmony team, "Jim and Walt," is blind. But he hasn't let this misfortune interfere with his ambitions to be a musician. Few members of the radio audience know of his blindness and even while playing theatrical engagements it is rare indeed for anyone in the house to suspect that one of the two happy-go-lucky lads on the stage has never seen the light of day. In one of their features they are known as "Korn and Parchie." Both are excellent pianists as well as vocalists and they compose both the words and music to many of their numbers.

In this season of price, price, price, The Criterion would like to talk with a man like you.

Most men in Xenia are conservative citizens who steer clear of exaggeration as tho' it were counterfeited money.

They know clothing is down in price... but they also know that automobiles will never sell at the price of bicycles... nor will good clothing ever be so cheap as cheap suits and overcoats.

To these men, we say this: we are still featuring quality in Michaels-Stern clothing. Our prices are low and easy to pay... but they are not the lowest you can find.

If you seek to save money... you'll like it here... but if you simply are looking for a price ticket, we perhaps won't be able to please you.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, yellow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

No More Gas In Stomach and Bowels

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels, take Baalman's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach will disappear that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish, and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort. That drowsy, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your limbs, arms and legs will no longer feel cold and "go to sleep" because Baalman's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. Get the genuine in the yellow package, at any good drug store. Price 5c.

Always on hand at
SOHN'S DRUG STORE

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

ANTIOCH TRUSTEE LANDSCAPES CAMPUS FOR COLLEGE GARDENS

A hitherto undeveloped section of the 1000-acre campus at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, is now being landscaped according to plans formulated by Mrs. Jessie W. Armstrong, a trustee of the college, who is presenting the new park to Antioch as a memorial to her husband, the late Dr. E. J. Armstrong of Erie, Pa.

This section of the campus in the future will be called the "Dingle" after an English park of the same name in Shropshire, Shrewsbury.

On a recent trip abroad, Mrs. Armstrong visited the gardens there and was struck by their similarity in natural layout to the Antioch land. It was with the English gardens in mind that she planned the present development.

Miss Louise P. Mealy, landscape architect of Monticello, Minnesota, a graduate of the Lowthorpe School at Groton, Mass., is in charge of the project, an extensive one which will require from three to five years for completion.

The plot of ground which is being landscaped is situated at the edge of Glen Helen, just across from Antioch Hall, the main building, and includes the tract around the power house, a sunken excavation known as the "old quarry" and a level stretch around some stone "ruins." The recently completed plans provide for four elevations in the new park, with a foot path and stone steps leading from one to another. The highest level will include the parkway around the ruins. On the second level will be a fall and cascades, the water for which is being piped from the Yellow Spring some distance away. The cascades are to empty into a long stream or narrow pond which in turn will flow into a larger stream on the bottom level in what is now the old quarry.

The work which at present employs about fifteen men, will continue until cold weather, and will be resumed in the spring. About ten feet of excavation has been completed on the second level, where a retaining wall and the first of the stone steps have been built, and vines planted. On the bottom level, the old quarry has been drained down to the rock bottom. All materials on the grounds are being utilized, according to Miss Mealy—everything but the tin cans which were once dumped into the quarry. Rock and soil are being used for filling, and many of the big trees and vines were replanted.

Have you what is commonly called that Tired Feeling?

"I just can't go on"—how often you hear this.

So often the reason is simple—that good body of ours has "run-down" under the strain of our way of living . . . pressure of work and worry.

Those important precious red-blood-cells that mean so much to vitality become lowered in count . . . the hemoglobin percentage begins to fall and we wonder "What is the matter?"

If this is your trouble, why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning . . . as so are pimples, boils and paleness. A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today!—the larger size represents a price saving.

Marie Dressler As "Min" Academy Prize Does Win

Life must seem very bright and rosy to Marie Dressler, an actress of parts, who was face to face with the seamy side of existence a few years ago and is now receiving the plaudits of the motion picture world. Miss Dressler has been designated as having given the best performance of an actress in 1931.

With 2,000 persons present, including Vice President Charles G. Curtis, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences conferred the first prize upon Miss Dressler in Los Angeles Tuesday night. She won the award with her stellar portrayal in "Min and Bill," in which she was assisted by Wallace Beery.

Lionel Barrymore gave the best actor's performance of the year the Oklahoma oil millionaire in this film. Irene Rich played his wife, Marguerite Churchill his daughter and Rex Bell his son. If any member of the original cast is not available that character will be eliminated. Another story planned for Rogers is "David Harum," which will probably follow the Crox story. Fox is one of the few studios to have success with sequels. The Flagg-Quirt series and the "Cisco Kid" stories all have made money.

Mitzi Green will leave on a vaudeville tour in the middle of December, when her Paramount contract runs out. The studio is not renewing the contract. Mitzi is at that awkward age, you know.

and received a similar award from the academy. His portrayal was in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "A Free Soul."

The next best performances by actresses were voted to Norma Shearer, last year's winner, Irene Dunne, Ann Harding and Marlene Dietrich, while the four actors who had been considered for the honor Barrymore were Richard Dix, Jackie Cooper, Adolphe Menjou and Frederic March.

The reward for the best directed achievement was given to Paramount's "Skippy," directed by Clarence Brown, while "Dawn Patrol," a Warner picture by John Monk Saunders, was voted the best original motion picture story. The best motion picture adaptation prize went to R. K. O.'s "Cimarron," which also won premier honors for the best art direction. The best photography was declared won by Floyd Crosby in "Tabu."

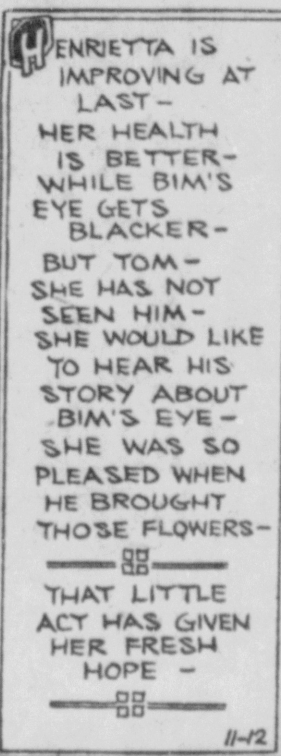

Early in 1932 Will Rogers is going to make a sequel to "They Had to See Paris," his first talking picture. Homer Crox has been engaged by Fox to weave his characters into another story and of course the same players will be engaged. You'll recall Rogers was

MISS LUCY TAGGART CHRISTENS VESSEL ON CAMDEN PROGRAM

The christening of the new United States cruiser, "Indiana," at Camden, N. J., Saturday was of special significance to Xenia for Miss Lucy Taggart, Indianapolis, daughter of the late Thomas Taggart, former U. S. senator from Indiana and former Xenian, took part in the ceremony. Miss Taggart broke over the ship's prow a bottle filled from the waters of Fall Creek and White River.

Miss Taggart's niece, Miss Evelyn Chambers also of Indianapolis and a student at Vassar College, served as Miss Taggart's maid of honor. The ceremony was witnessed by a group of citizens from Indianapolis, headed by Mayor Reginald H. Sullivan.

The "Indiana," 74 percent completed at the time of the ceremony, is soon to become a unit of the American navy. It will be finished and turned over to the government probably early next June. It is being built by the New York Shipbuilding Co.

On behalf of the company, Clinton L. Bardo, president, presented Miss Taggart with a diamond pin for her part in the services. "It is a pleasure and a compliment to have participated in the launching of the 'Indiana' and I appreciate the honor which Mayor Sullivan has done me in selecting me to christen the ship, but I feel that it is more of a compliment to the memory of my father than to me."

Miss Taggart said in responding to the shipbuilding company's officials entertained Mayor Sullivan, Miss Taggart and other members of the christening party at luncheon at the Hotel Walt Whitman, Camden, following the ceremony.
